Moving through the Machine

An original lesson from WritingFix (<http://writingfix.com>)

Instructions: Today, inspired by the donut-making machine in Homer Price, you'll be writing about a machine that makes something in a step-by-step process. Use this graphic organizer to plan your description of how your imaginary machine makes its creation. In the two right-hand columns, brainstorm several words that might work for each step...then choose the best one when you write your rough draft.

What happens during this step? Write it out as a brief sentence:	Great verbs or adjectives:	Transition words or phrases:
#2
#3
#4
#5
#6

If your machine needs more steps, continue brainstorming on the back side of this page.
