Permission to Photograph Student & Publish Writing On-line

(Student's name printed)

(Name of Lesson/Book used at WritingFix)

Congratulations are in order!

The above-mentioned student has had his/her work accepted to be included as part of the growing on-line collection of classroom lessons that are housed at <http://writingfix.org>. This not-for-profit website is sponsored by the Northern Nevada Writing Project, and it is an educational site used primarily by teachers and students. Excellent student samples for many of the on-line writing assignments are being published, so that teachers and students can see how other students succeeded when writing to the website's on-line prompts. At present, the website features student samples from all over the U.S.A., as well as from Canada and Australia.

With your permission, we will publish this student's writing on-line, and we will include a small photograph next to his/her writing. Only the student's first name will be shared. No information about city of residence or the school where the student attends will be included. Once published, the student's teacher will be provided with the direct link to the on-line page so that family and friends can access the page from any computer with an Internet connection.
