

Name:

Planning your Punctuation or Part of Speech Family
a worksheet from an original WritingFix writing lesson

Father:

What punctuation mark/part of speech is he most like?

Below, in the box, write three or four reasons why the father is like the piece of punctuation or part of speech, or write three or four things he might say in your introduction to him:

Mother:

What punctuation mark/part of speech is she most like?

Below, in the box, write three or four reasons why the mother is like the piece of punctuation or part of speech, or write three or four things she might say in your introduction to him:

Brother:

What punctuation mark/part of speech is he most like?

Below, in the box, write three or four reasons why the brother is like the piece of punctuation or part of speech, or write three or four things he might say in your introduction to him:

Sister:

What punctuation mark/part of speech is she most like?

Below, in the box, write three or four reasons why the sister is like the piece of punctuation or part of speech, or write three or four things she might say in your introduction to him:

If you want to have more than four family members, plan them on another piece of paper.